

STANDARD RIFLE

With the ongoing developments world wide especially in the military and police application of the assault rifle the trend is to equip the issue-weapon with an optical sighting device in order to enhance the shooters capability.

Should we as dedicated sport shooters follow this development and also improve our participant's capability and enjoyment?

From the very limited research, the USPSA are already doing a similar option, but developed a separate category called "Tactical", the rifle is thus then equipped with one optical sight, but the shotgun and pistol remain as per Limited/Standard rules.

Tactical is the American name given to this option, perhaps we should look for a different name.

During NGPSA 3-Gun matches we will have 3 Categories/Divisions:

Open

Standard

Tactical/ Or some other name

Like to hear from my fellow standard gun shooters.
